Degrees in Christian Studies

GCU offers a Bachelor of Arts in Christian Studies and a Master of Arts in Christian Studies with four emphases. These programs equip learners to lead in their areas of influence, be they secular, religious, professional or personal. The programs focus on biblical and theological knowledge, practical application of that knowledge, and the development of character and integrity in all aspects of life.

The Bachelor of Arts in Christian Studies utilizes biblical studies as the foundation of understanding theology, philosophy, Christian history and to communicate Christ to various audiences. In addition to spiritual formation and exegetical skills essential to Christian studies, graduates will be able to employ the communication, leadership and organizational skills necessary for effective ministry.

The Master of Arts in Christian Studies is designed for individuals desiring to lead as Christians in their arenas of influence. The program focuses on the preparation of leaders in biblical and theological knowledge, practical application of that knowledge in leadership settings, and the development of character and integrity in all aspects of life. There are four tracks available for the Master of Arts in Christian Studies: Urban Ministry, Youth Ministry, Christian Leadership and Pastoral Ministry.

“I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry.”

1 Timothy 1:12

Degrees in Criminal Justice

In local communities and around the world, the field of criminal justice continues to be increasingly complex and in high demand for qualified professionals. For this reason, many criminal justice positions now require a bachelor's degree for entry and a graduate degree to qualify for promotion. To answer the need for more expertise in the legal, social, political and managerial aspects of criminal justice, Grand Canyon University offers both bachelor's and master's degree programs in this rewarding field.

The Bachelor of Science in Justice Studies prepares students to enter careers in law enforcement, governmental and private agencies, research, social work, political science and a variety of other fields. Graduates will be able to describe the components of the justice system from a systems perspective, including function, organization, practices and interrelationship of law enforcement agencies, the courts and the corrections system.

The Master of Science in Criminal Justice Programs expand the student's understanding of the law, social order and justice. Criminal justice graduates are equipped to more effectively perform as criminal justice professionals, successfully manage law-related functions and strategically lead law enforcement organizations.

Grand Canyon University offers two master's in criminal justice programs; one with an emphasis in law enforcement and the other with a focus on legal studies.

Master of Science in Criminal Justice with an Emphasis in Law Enforcement

The Master's in Criminal Justice with an Emphasis in Law Enforcement is particularly suited for law enforcement personnel, including corrections, probation and parole officers.

Master of Science in Criminal Justice with an Emphasis in Legal Studies

The Master's in Criminal Justice with an Emphasis in Legal Studies takes a closer look at constitutional issues, international law and legal research.

Criminal justice jobs are projected to increase through 2018, which means there will be an abundance of openings for criminal justice graduates. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, "Employment of private detectives and investigators is expected to grow 22 percent over the 2008-18 decade, much faster than the average for all occupations." This increase is due to the growing need to protect information and property, heightened security concerns and increased litigation.

Degrees in Psychology and Sociology

Grand Canyon University offers a Bachelor of Science in Sociology, Bachelor of Science in Psychology, Master of Science in Psychology with two specialization options, and Doctor of Philosophy in General Psychology, also with two specialization options.

*Psychologist jobs are projected to have a 12% growth through 2018 due to an increased need for psychological services in hospitals, schools and social service agencies.

The Bachelor of Science in Sociology encourages students to think deeply and seriously, using both the Christian and scientific perspectives, about the consequences of social structures upon human social behavior in its many diverse contexts.

The Bachelor of Science in Psychology helps prepare students for positions in agencies and organizations that seek to help those in need. This program offers a broad array of courses that increase the understanding of past and present human actions. With this understanding comes the responsibility to improve relationships with others and help others achieve a similar understanding of their own behaviors.

The Master of Science in Psychology is designed for individuals who desire promotion and/or continued academic exposure in the field of psychology. This program focuses on the development of critical thinking and leadership qualities. Graduates with these attributes impact those around them through leadership, action research, and introduction of programmatic community changes whether they are acting from the perspective of teachers, practitioners or researchers. There are two master's in psychology emphases: one in general psychology and the other in industrial and organizational psychology.

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in General Psychology offers two different tracks: Cognitive/Instructional and Industrial/Organizational. The Cognitive/Instructional track offers a broad array of courses that increase the understanding of human actions in the past and present. The Industrial/Organizational track focuses on using industrial psychology in applied, business-related settings. Both psychology tracks consist of 60 credits and are delivered 100% online with no residency requirements.

“By earning a degree in Christian Studies [from GCU], I will increase my general knowledge and dedication to Christ. Leadership prepares me as I climb the Air Force rank ladder.”

Lee E. Hoover Jr., United States Air Force in San Antonio, Texas, BA - Christian Studies / Leadership (anticipated graduation 2011)

“I chose GCU because I have an extremely busy schedule and needed an environment that worked with that schedule. I needed an education I could earn online where little classroom time was required. GCU offered that to me and it has been extremely beneficial.”

Kristin McConnell, Minister in Fresno, CA - BA, Pastoral Ministry (anticipated graduation October 2011)

“There were several online universities to select from; however, I wanted to attend a university with history, one that cares for the education that is being provided and believes in the students. When a friend of mine told me about GCU, I was pleased to discover that the school has been around for over 60 years and comforted to find the values-based curriculum from the context of the Christian heritage.”

Jalena Gianino, Human Resources Consultant, West Sacramento, CA - BS, Psychology (anticipated graduation July 2011)

Financing your GCU Education

One size never fits all and the options for financing your college education are no exception. Fortunately, at GCU we are here to walk you through the various finance options so you can find the one that best fits your needs. Your financial options include financial aid, scholarships, direct bill and military benefits.

Direct Bill

Students may work for employers offering to pay their school tuition directly. In these situations, the employer will create an account with GCU so the Student Accounting Office can send bills directly to them. This payment relationship bypasses the student completely; however, students must have their employers complete a Direct Bill Voucher to submit with their application.

(1) - It is the policy of the University to collect and remit sales, use, excise and/or gross receipts taxes in compliance with state and local taxing jurisdiction regulations which require the University to remit tax where applicable. These regulations vary by location. Please note: It is also the policy of the University to require payment of sales, use, excise, and/or gross receipts tax. Payment of tax is ultimately the student's financial responsibility to the University regardless of financing arrangements. Per Hawaii requirements: It is hereby stated that students residing in the State of Hawaii will be charged Hawaii General Excise Tax on all transactions. Students living in the District of Oahu will be charged 4.5%. Students residing in other Hawaii districts will be charged 4.0%. (2) - Book costs are based on an average. Costs may increase or decrease depending on electronic availability or publishers book costs. (3) - Room and board costs may be higher or lower depending on housing and meal plan choice. This number is based on an average for students on campus. (4) - Some Non-Traditional programs may be offered on the ground campus or on-line. (5) - N/A identifies that a program is not offered in that modality, amount is equal to zero, or fewer than 10 students graduated within the reported timeframe. (6) - Tuition and Fees for each program are based on current rates. Future Tuition and Fee Rates may vary. Tuition was calculated using the number of credit hours in the program times the current tuition rate.
