

Grand Canyon University launches MBA program for HCL Enterprises in India

Tuesday, March 25, 2008

Grand Canyon University has launched a master's of business administration program in India working with one of the country's largest companies, HCL Enterprises.

The MBA program will be offered through GCU's Ken Blanchard College of Business to more than 100 of the technology company's top managers. The Phoenix school competed against other institutions to offer the online MBA program.

"As a company that does a tremendous amount of business in the U.S., having an American education is very important," said Jennifer Jones, manager of the Center for International Education at Grand Canyon University.
